

RUSSIAN SECRET SALES WAY

Returns to Sebastopol on Turkey's Compliance with All Demands.

KAISER IS APPEALED TO

Porte Agrees to the Appointment of Several Foreign Officers in the Gendarmerie.

ASKS BELGIUM TO NAME FOUR

Situation in Adrianople Verging on Panic, Villages Burning and Inhabitants Fleeing.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sunday.—The Russian squadron has sailed from Turkish waters. The Porte's reply accepting the Russian demands was delivered twelve hours after the presentation of the Russian note.

Tewfik Pacha, the foreign Minister, and Naum Pacha thereupon called on M. Zinovief, the Russian Ambassador, and requested the withdrawal of the Russian squadron from Turkish waters on the ground that its presence tended to encourage the insurrection.

On the receipt of a favorable reply from St. Petersburg, M. Zinovief telegraphed the order of withdrawal to Admiral Krieger, commanding the Russian squadron at Inada.

A rumor had been current that the Sultan appealed to the German Emperor to use his good offices at St. Petersburg, in favor of the recall of the Russian squadron.

An extraordinary Council of Ministers assembled at Yıldız Park yesterday to consider the situation in the interior and discuss the military measures rendered necessary by it. The Council was presided over by the Sultan, and the French Ambassador.

News from Adrianople represents the situation in that vilayet as verging on a panic. The insurgents have destroyed telegraphic communication at several points between Adrianople and Kirk-Kilise, thirty-five miles to the northeast, and have burned and pillaged several villages, including Kavalik and Kizil, southwest of Kirk-Kilise. Troops have been despatched to the environs of Adrianople.

Two sailing vessels, crowded with Muslim refugees from villages on the Black Sea coast, have arrived at Kavak, at the entrance to the Bosphorus.

At Monastir, a Muslim called the Italian Consul a traitor. A strong feeling prevails among the Muslims at Salonica and Monastir on account of the execution of M. Rostkowski's murderers. The remains of the murdered Consul were shipped at Salonica yesterday, with great pomp, on board the Russian gunboat, the "Tavris," which was escorted by the Turkish civil and military authorities attended the ceremony. The "Tavris" sailed for Odessa.

PORTER'S FULL AMENDS.

Guilty Punished and Foreign Officers To Be Appointed in Gendarmerie.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—The Russian Black Sea squadron, which was ordered to Turkish waters and which arrived at Inada on August 19, in order to support Russia's demands on the Sultan growing out of the assassination of M. Rostkowski, has been recalled to Sebastopol, the squadron's point of departure.

The recall of the Russian squadron followed on a notification from the Porte that the Sultan had accepted the Russian demands to be complied with.

The despatch received from M. Zinovief, Russian Ambassador at Constantinople, announcing that the Sultan had yielded completely to Russia's demands was as follows:

"The Porte has taken the following measures to fulfill the demands of the Russian Government:—In addition to the condemnation and execution of Rostkowski's murderers and the punishment of their accomplices, those officers who made disrespectful comments to the Russian Ambassador have been dismissed from the service. A careful search is being made for the persons who were at the Consul's residence, and the officers are relieved of their posts and handed over to justice. All private persons mentioned in the Russian demands of various offenses will likewise be tried."

"Ismail Haki Pacha, the Chief of Police at Salonica, has been relieved of his post. The persons under arrest for accusing Muslims of outrage and abuse have been liberated. Hussein Hilmi, Inspector General of Macedonia, has been dismissed. The chiefs of gendarmerie and police at Salonica are replaced."

The Porte has accepted the appointment to the gendarmerie of several foreign officers whose names will be announced later, and has agreed to accept the judicial authorities have received the strictest orders to take measures to secure order and tranquility."

The news has reached St. Petersburg from Brussels that the Porte has requested Belgium to name four officers for the Turkish Gendarmerie.

INSURGENTS WIN IN ADRIANOPLE

Many Villages Burned and Turkish Troops Said to Have Suffered Severe Defeats.

SOFIA, Sunday.—From Eastern Adrianople come reports of more fighting, which so far appears to be resulting chiefly in favor of the revolutionists. Many villages have been burned and their inhabitants taken refuge in the Bulgarian frontier.

After a long fight at Sivoflova the insurgents defeated a detachment of Turkish troops, which lost twenty killed and wounded.

At Chanasagok, near Sirovovici, the insurgents have annihilated an entire Turkish regiment.

At Bulankaz, near Tervovo, seventy-five revolutionists have defeated a Turkish battalion. The villages of Andemir and Enik, near Vanilik, have been burned to ashes.

The Turkish army, which has been destroyed the Monastery of Constantinople, near Losengrad, where fifty insurgents fortified themselves. The villages of Bakik, Konakara, Evren, Dinsigoc and Bruse have all been burned and their inhabitants have fled. The large village of Urmubeg, near Losengrad, has been burned by Basil-Bakovic.

The village of Ruzhik, with three hundred houses, and Rakovo, with two hundred houses, situated in the vilayet of Monastir, have also been burned by Turkish troops. Two hundred women and children from these villages are now begging in the streets of Monastir.

The Turkish government has organized a special corps at Monastir to try the captured insurgents. The corps is composed of a Turkish President, three other Turks, two Greeks and one Albanian. It will partake of the character of a criminal court, and not of a court martial.

MEN CALLED FROM ROUMANIA

BUCAREST, Sunday.—The Bulgarian and Greek subjects residing in Roumania have been ordered by their respective governments to return to their homes without delay in order to be ready for mobilization.

THE NEW MARQUIS OF SALISBURY AND A TYPICAL ROOM IN HATFIELD HOUSE

THE WINTER DINING-ROOM AT HATFIELD HOUSE. NUMEROUS PORTRAITS OF CELEBRITIES HANG ON THE WAINSCOTTED WALLS FROM THE SPHERE.

KING'S TRIBUTE TO LORD SALISBURY

"Deeply Deplores Loss of so Great a Statesman in Highest Offices."

CONDOLENCES POUR IN

Hatfield Curate, in Sermon, Dwells on His Private Virtues and Devotion to the Church.

LONDON, Monday.—King Edward's tribute to the deceased Marquis of Salisbury was given in the Court Circular last night, dated Monday, Sunday. It runs as follows:—

"The King has received with profound regret the news of the death of the Marquis of Salisbury and His Majesty deeply deplores the loss of so great a statesman, whose invaluable services to Queen Victoria, to the King and his country in the highest offices of state which he held for so many years will ever dwell in the memory of his fellow countrymen."

Messages of condolence are pouring in at Hatfield House. The senders include King Edward and Queen Alexandra, the Queen of Portugal and President Loubet. Touching references were made to the dead statesman in the pulpits of almost all the churches in the United Kingdom. There were many visitors to the village of Hatfield yesterday.

The parish church was crowded in the morning, the worshippers including Mr. Balfour, the Earl and Countess of Selborne, the Marquis' sons and the members of his family and household. Lord William Cecil, the rector of the church, officiated, but beyond choice music and appropriate hymns the service was of the usual character.

The senior curate in his sermon paid a tribute to the deceased, specially dwelling on his private virtues and his devotion to the church. On the conclusion of the discourse the whole congregation rose and remained standing while the organist played "The Dead March in Saul."

The funeral has been provisionally fixed for the end of this week, to enable Lord Salisbury to be buried in the family vault at Hatfield House last night and issued to the press a brief description of the final stages of the illness, which confirms the statements already cabled.

The newspapers this morning, some of which appear with black borders, devote the bulk of the space to the last hours and career of the Marquis of Salisbury. In their editorial columns they pay tributes and express deep admiration for the dead man, recognizing that with him there passes away the last of the great English statesmen of the Victorian era, as well as the last of the brilliant group of European statesmen which included Bismarck, Gortchakoff and Andrassy.

It is held that his work in the domain of foreign policy was his constant endeavor to preserve peace. He is hailed as the true representative type of the unambitious, conservative and aristocratic class.

FRENCH RECOGNITION.

Fashoda Incident Would Have Been More Dangerous Under Any Other Premier.

PARIS, Sunday.—The death of Lord Salisbury has considerably lessened the impression here. Although the late statesman had retired from politics, the feeling prevails here that his disappearance will contribute to strengthen the position of Colonial Secretary, Mr. Chamberlain, which circumstance is not thought likely to promote friendly relations between the two countries.

The ability, prudence and moderation of the former Premier are frankly recognized. The moment was extremely touching when the dead man's brother-in-law, General Ganzi, and his stepmother, Donna Ercole, have arrived, and there has been a continual repetition of distressing scenes in the mortuary chamber.

The moment was extremely touching when the dead man's brother Riccotti entered the room, supported by a crutch and weeping over the corpse of his only brother. On coming out he said in a tone of reproach:—"Why did you not dress Menotti in his red shirt? No one would be any more."

MENOTTI GARIBALDI'S BIER.

Brother Regrets Body Was Not Laid Out in Red Shirt, Which He Wore with Such Honor.

ROME, Sunday.—The body of Menotti Garibaldi, the eldest son of the Italian patriot, who died yesterday, has been laid out in evening dress and laid on a catafalque in the largest room of his apartment, which, with sable hangings, had been transformed into a mortuary chapel. Beside the body stand four candlesticks. A vigil is kept by Garibaldian veterans, some of whom have been unable to restrain their tears. All Menotti's relatives, including his son Giuseppe, his brother-in-law, General Ganzi, and his stepmother, Donna Ercole, have arrived, and there has been a continual repetition of distressing scenes in the mortuary chamber.

The moment was extremely touching when the dead man's brother Riccotti entered the room, supported by a crutch and weeping over the corpse of his only brother. On coming out he said in a tone of reproach:—"Why did you not dress Menotti in his red shirt? No one would be any more."

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

The Governor has since announced that work will be generally resumed on the railroads and in the factories to-morrow, special measures being taken to protect the workmen from violence on the part of the strikers.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

The Governor has since announced that work will be generally resumed on the railroads and in the factories to-morrow, special measures being taken to protect the workmen from violence on the part of the strikers.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

OPPORTUNITY FOR THE FUTURE IS NOT AN ISSUE IN HEALTHY HOMES

Broadway Business Men Declare That Fear of Arson and Devastation Had Compelled Residents to Feed the "Hobos."

WILL NOT BE DIVERTED MANY GARDENS RUINED HIS LONG PURSUIT FUTILE

Forty-second Street Strong Example of an Inconvenience, Says Mr. Marc Klaw.

There were further indignities on the part of Broadway business men yesterday against the statement made by Alexander E. Orr, president of the Rapid Transit Commission, to the effect that "New Yorkers do not know what inconveniences are."

The "easy" signs of the summer tourists' lingo, which marked the gateways of the homes of Isaac G. Johnson, Mrs. William E. Dodge, George W. Perkins, Daniel McCreey and others have disappeared from the train of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad at this season of the year has decreased to such an extent that only the boldest of the tribe now dares set foot in the neighborhood.

Through the fear that the tramp would devastate the gardens and shrubbery, in many instances the visitors have been obliged to threaten violence when the "handout" has not been of a suitable character. Many gardens have been trampled at night and several have been destroyed.

When Captain Ward was recently transferred from the Kingsbridge station to the Kingsbridge station, he took with him four men who had never been beyond the bounds of Manhattan, on police duty, Mullin, Jones and Hesch. Captain Ward knew of the tramp brigade for his own home in the neighborhood of the Kingsbridge station, and he had paid the usual tribute. He went to work.

Every morning he saw the tramp brigade, and he had to be careful of his own property. The result of their tour invariably made the station house sergeant perspire. Each morning there was a parade of tramps, handcuffed in pairs, and seemingly under the escort of a police officer, who were taken to the new police station. Men and women stood in doorways or on piazzas and applauded.

MECHIEVE ON SATURDAY NIGHT.

As late as Saturday night several members of the tramp brigade visited the garden of George C. Mechieve, a neighbor of Daniel J. Ward, and having nothing to their taste pulled up row after row of cauliflower by the roots, and then trampled over the great green cabbages.

In the Kingsbridge station, early yesterday morning, the tramp brigade, consisting of a quartet of new arrivals, just as a pair of spring chickens, newly roasted in a large pot, were being served up to the tramp brigade. They were taken to the Kingsbridge station, and sentenced to six months in the workhouse.

Brooklyn residents who object to a ditch in the street, with its accompaniment of dirt and interruption to business, say they will take advantage of the offer which the city has made to meet them and talk over the project.

ROME, Sunday.—The consecration of the Rev. Thomas A. Hendrick, of Rochester, N. Y., as Bishop of Cebu, P. I., was performed this morning by Cardinal Sartoli in the pretty church of the Trinitaria, near the Piazza del Popolo.

The ceremony, which was of great importance because of Cardinal Sartoli's assistants at the function was Archbishop Harty, the Metropolitan of the Philippine Islands, while contemporaneously Cardinal Sartoli consecrated Mar. Cavallari as Titular Bishop of Philadelphia, Asia Minor, whom the Pope has appointed to the see of Manila.

Cardinal Sartoli still kept for himself the Patriarchate, thus avoiding a revival of the question whether the Italian government has the right to choose the Patriarch of Venice, which it claimed when he, as Cardinal Sartoli, was appointed to that post.

The scene to-day in the Vatican was in extreme when the red robed Cardinal, surrounded by the bishops and a number of other prelates, proceeded to the altar.

The students of the American College came to Rome from their villa at Castel Gandolfo to assist in the ceremony. A sumptuous collation was afterward served in the refectory to two hundred distinguished guests.

Cardinal Sartoli gave a magnificent dinner in honor of the occasion, at which American and Irish prelates were present. Archbishop Harty was booked his passage on the "Irish Mail" to leave Havre for New York on August 28.

Bishop Hendrick, who has received instructions regarding the Philippines from the Secretary of State, will have a private audience of Pius X. and will afterward leave for Ireland, as he wishes to have his last interview with the Pope.

Cardinal Sartoli, who is now in Rome, desires that several Irish prelates be sent, at least for a time.

Rhinoceros' Joy Fatal to Friend

Smiles, Park Prize, Long Ill, Cured by Bees and Wasps, in Play Imperils Keeper and Hurts Topsy, His Guardian and Companion.

Smiles oil and other remedies were tried by Snyder, but the rhinoceros grew worse and the keeper sought advice. He heard that a certain man was using a quantity of bees and wasps from Edmund Southwick, Park entomologist, mixed them in a liniment which he applied to the joints of Smiles.

As Snyder was preparing to leave Smiles' stall yesterday he heard a commotion behind him and turned around to see that the rhinoceros was dodging and dodging the charge of the animal. With lowered horns Smiles again rushed toward the keeper. Snyder dodged once more, and then made his escape from the stall by a rear door.

One of the greatest comforts of Smiles in the menagerie, had been looked upon as an invalid for life and his cure is considered remarkable by keepers and animal dealers who were interested in his case.

The Governor has since announced that work will be generally resumed on the railroads and in the factories to-morrow, special measures being taken to protect the workmen from violence on the part of the strikers.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sunday.—A law legalizing strikes is in preparation. A general strike began on August 20 at Ekaterinoslav. The troops who were summoned to restore order met with a hostile reception, but dispersed the crowd after firing a few shots. Next day the tramway and railroad traffic was stopped; the newspapers did not appear and the factories were surrounded by troops. Thousands of strikers gathered in the market place, and a collision with the military occurred. Eleven strikers were killed and twelve wounded before order was restored. Before evening the street cars resumed and work was started again in some private workshops.

MOTHER LOVE GAVE HUSBAND VICTORY

Mrs. Wilson Says She Surrendered Child to Father Fearing It Would Suffer.

Long, Exciting Journeys Were Telling Upon Health of Little Son, Declares Pursued Wife.

"It is hard for any one except a mother to understand a woman who will do for child," said Mrs. Francis Wilson, better known by her stage name of Miss Julie Van Buerker, at the Hotel Navarre last night in discussing the exciting chase across this continent and through Europe by Mr. Wilson, her husband, and his father, Mr. George R. Wilson, of Colorado Springs, in pursuit of little George Russell Wilson, the three and a half year old child of the couple.

"Why did you finally surrender, after making such a successful journey with your child?"

"Just because I love my little one dearly," responded Mrs. Wilson with warmth, "and I saw that the constant change of residence was not doing the child any good."

"What have you to say about your husband's threatened health, and his wife's?"

Mrs. Wilson's deep blue eyes were dim for an instant, then she said, with a touch of pride, "There will not be any suit. I was with my darling this morning in the park and Mr. Wilson was there, too. The boy is going back to his grandparents and I shall see him whenever and wherever I choose."

"Will you enter a counter suit, if any action is begun?"

"Of course I should defend myself. I am all alone in the world. Only the other day I said to my husband, 'Oh, if I only had a brother or somebody to defend me!' But I have never had my husband watched. He is an honorable man, I am sure, and I shall never attack his character, but if I am attacked I certainly shall fight as only a mother can fight."

"What about the threatened suit against your husband and this Oscar Rabl, whom you met on your journey?"

"I am not at all concerned about the suit against my husband. He is a very good man, and he is helping to shield you and helping to secrete the child."

"What about the moonshine. Both Mr. Rabl and Mr. Karl Schauer, the German army officer whose name has been bandied about in this unbecoming affair, were gentlemen, and they acted as gentlemen would act under the circumstances."

"Mr. Rabl is very much taken with the cunning actions of my baby. When I was hotly pursued I telegraphed him from London to tell me to look out for my child. He replied that he would take the child away from its grandmother at Chicago and begin this exciting journey across the Continent."

"That is a personal matter that does not concern anybody save myself and my husband. I have not heard from him since he was informed that my little one was being pursued against me—it is his mother, the only one who loved it dearly, and that I had better remove the child from its present surroundings."

"I am sure over to my father-in-law. I think I was fully justified in what I did."

"This long chase must have cost a great deal of money, didn't it?"

Mrs. Wilson laughed musically and her eyes twinkled as she recalled the midnight rides, the stage trips, the doubling on the trail and the pursuit, now dangerous, now comic, now sad, now mad, during the long weeks this summer.

"Well, it cost me a pretty penny, that's true. I have not heard from him since he was informed that my little one was being pursued against me—it is his mother, the only one who loved it dearly, and that I had better remove the child from its present surroundings."

"I am sure over to my father-in-law. I think I was fully justified in what I did."

"This long chase must have cost a great deal of money, didn't it?"

Mrs. Wilson laughed musically and her eyes twinkled as she recalled the midnight rides, the stage trips, the doubling on the trail and the pursuit, now dangerous, now comic, now sad, now mad, during the long weeks this summer.

"Well, it cost me a pretty penny, that's true. I have not heard from him since he was informed that my little one was being pursued against me—it is his mother, the only one who loved it dearly, and that I had better remove the child from its present surroundings."

"I am sure over to my father-in-law. I think I was fully justified in what I did."

"This long chase must have cost a great deal of money, didn't it?"

Mrs. Wilson laughed musically and her eyes twinkled as she recalled the midnight rides, the stage trips, the doubling on the trail and the pursuit, now dangerous, now comic, now sad, now mad, during the long weeks this summer.

"Well, it cost me a pretty penny, that's true. I have not heard from him since he was informed that my little one was being pursued against me—it is his mother, the only one who loved it dearly, and that I had better remove the child from its present surroundings."

"I am sure over to my father-in-law. I think I was fully justified in what I did."

"This long chase must have cost a great deal of money, didn't it?"

Mrs. Wilson laughed musically and her eyes twinkled as she recalled the midnight rides, the stage trips, the doubling on the trail and the pursuit, now dangerous, now comic, now sad, now mad, during the long weeks this summer.

"Well, it cost me a pretty penny, that's true. I have not heard from him since he was informed that my little one was being pursued against me—it is his mother, the only one who loved it dearly, and that I had better remove the child from its present surroundings."

"I am sure over to my father-in-law. I think I was fully justified in what I did."

"This long chase must have cost a great deal of money, didn't it?"

Mrs. Wilson laughed musically and her eyes twinkled as she recalled the midnight rides, the stage trips, the doubling on the trail and the pursuit, now dangerous, now comic, now sad, now mad, during the long weeks this summer.